

OPINION

Friday May 30, 2008

CHEERS & JEERS

CHEERS . . . to Bryan Mauk, who took along a program to aid the homeless when he left St. Ignatius High School for John Carroll University, and since graduating from college this month has taken an even more ambitious idea out into the “real world.” Starting with a $40,000 award from the William E. Simon Fellowship for Noble Purpose, Mauk plans to buy homes in foreclosure that homeless people will work to rehab and resell.